```
from karel.stanfordkarel import * def turn_right():
    turn_left()
    turn_left()
    turn_left()

def beeper_column():
    """
    Places one column of beepers.
    Pre: Karel is either:
           - On row 1 facing North or,
           - On the top-most row facing South
    Post: If Karel started on row 1, they are now on the top-most row facing North.
          If Karel started on the top-most row they are now on row 1 facing South.
    """
    put_beeper()  # Fencepost problem! This initial put_beeper() fixes it.
    while front_is_clear():  # We don't know how tall the column is, so use a while-loop to travel it move()
        put_beeper()

def draw_stripe():
    """
    Draws a two-column stripe as described in the prompt.

    Pre: Karel is on row 1 facing East.
    Post: Karel is on row 1 facing East, one column over.
    """
    # Place the stripe's first column of beepers.
    turn_left()  # Face North for beeper_column()'s pre-condition
    beeper_column()
    # Move to the next column
    turn_right()
    move()
    # Place the stripe's second column of beepers
    turn_right()  # Face South for beeper_column's pre-condition
```

```
    beeper_column()
    turn_left()  # Face East

def main():
    draw_stripe()
    while front_is_clear():  # We don't know exactly how many stripes we will need, so use a while-loop.
        for i in range(4):  # We know that there are 3 squares between each stripe, so use a for-loop to go to the next stripe's starting location.
            move()
        draw_stripe()  # This while-loop assumes Karel starts and ends drawing a stripe facing East on row 1!

if __name__ == '__main__':
    main()
```